Plans for a new golf course and race track are carried forth in negotiations just completed which dispose of approximately 282 acres of land along Telegraph road and along a stretch off of Rockland road, two and one-half miles west of Lake Bluff.

The plans were announced that Melvin J. Cassidy, representing the new interests, had purchased 210 acres of the Kate D. Haven farm land and 72 acres of other land, of which 58 acres was owned by Sarah J. Whitnell.

The price of the purchase was indicated at $100,000 subject to an encumbrance of $49,250.

According to the plans as disclosed to land owners in that section, the idea of obtaining the land centers about the desire to beautify the tract in general and to add a further incentive in the establishment of the golf course and new race track.

The Haven farm is in Telegraph road west of Lake Bluff and the Whitnell property is located in a tract set back from Rockland road nearby.

Mrs. Nellie Renehan aged 59, of Round Lake, wife of the late Edward Renehan, died Saturday morning after a short illness.

The deceased had been a resident of Lake county all her life, living at Fox Lake in her youth and moving to Round Lake many years ago. She was the daughter of James Welch, a county pioneer.

One son is left, Floyd, of Round Lake, and three daughters, Mrs. P. J. Meyer of Round Lake; Mrs. Wm. Menick of Chicago, and Miss Olive, a teacher in the Central school, at North Chicago.

She was a sister in law of George and Jason Renehan of Round Lake.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday.

About seventy-five farmers attended a sauer kraut dinner given at Weller's hall, Burlington last week by John Wolf. They were guests of Mr. Wolf on the occasion of an address to be given by J. C. Walker of Madison on "Cabbage Seeds and the Plants," the address followed the dinner Mr. Wolf treated his guests to cigars, remarking that they were made from some of last year's cabbage leaves.

Thirty-two head of matured Brown Swiss cattle brought an average of 200 per head at the sale of H. W. Ayers at Honey Creek last week. Including the young bulls thirty-nine head were sold for a total of $6,970, or an average of $170 per head.

Blue prints and dedications for the securing of the right-of-way for route 20 as same will pass thru the city of McHenry and thence to connect up with the cement roads now under construction both east and west arrived the latter part of last week and local officials are losing no time in getting the dedications signed up.

The latest political development of importance in Lake county affairs is the word from Springfield that Chas. Wightman of Grayslake has filed his petition as candidate for the state senate on the democratic ticket.

And now comes the word from Round Lake that the recent bear story as circulated in many of the papers of northern Illinois was all a fake.

John F. Herzog, county highway commissioner, of Kenosha announced that road connections have been restored with New Munster and thru to Silverlake, Wilmet and Somers. Ever since the main highways leading in and out of the city were opened, the machines and men have been working west on Highway 50, he said. In addition ten miles of the Burlington road has been broken open, although considerable difficulty has been found with the drifting and the condition is said to be none too good. Road connection with Lake Geneva, it was stated, will probably not be restored until the snow melts from the roads. Walworth county it is said, is making Junior League Cabinet meeting this week will be held with Belle Hughes. Miss Addie Schaffer left on Tuesday for a two weeks' visit with relatives at Burlington.

Robert Selter has rented his Grass Lake summer resort to C. M. Spring, who took possession March first.
Miss Libbie Webb came home from Waukesha on Saturday on account of sickness. Miss Kennedy, a trained nurse, is at present caring for her.
Hermey Bock is drawing brick for a new house which will be erected about half way between his present house and the street. The front will be of pressed brick and it will be built on the cottage plan.
Harry Osmond and family of Solon have moved to Antioch and will occupy the rooms over their store in the Union block. Mr. Osmond spent Thursday in Chicago purchasing a full line of furniture and will be ready for business as soon as it arrives.

H. S. Basketeers Ready for Big Tournament

After a strenuous week of practicing, the Antioch high school basketball team is confident of winning from Libertyville at the district tournament which starts at Highland Park this afternoon. Antioch, however, does not get into the battle until tomorrow (Friday) afternoon at two o'clock. The winner of the Antioch-Libertyville game plays Gurnee at 8 o'clock Friday night. The winner of this battle will get into the finals Saturday night and will at least be assured of fourth place. With such teams as Oak Park, Evanston, New Trier, Deerfield and Waukegan in the tournament, a placement within the first four is considered quite an honor.

Antioch played Wauconda at the latter's "trick" gym last Friday evening and were handed a 10 to 10 defeat. The Wauconda gym is very small and has a low ceiling, and players not acquainted with the floor are under a great handicap. All of Antioch's ten points were scored by Nelson. This defeat does not discourage the boys in the least, as they all unite in saying, "watch us at the tournament."

The Antioch Athletic Club lost a one-sided game on Saturday evening to the Somers, Wis., five. This is the second win for the Badger five over Antioch. The score was 44 to 22. In the preliminary game the high school farm mechanics team defeated the Antioch Boy Scouts.

FOURTEEN SEEK COUNTY OFFICES AT PRIMARIES

With the close of the time for filing petitions of election, fourteen Lake county men have signified their aspirations to become servants of the people by holding offices here and while six offices are open to be filled, the majority of those desiring county positions are after the job of state's attorney. The time for filing is closed and only three of the positions will be contested by the petitioners. The clerk of the circuit court, the county recorder, and the senatorial committee jobs are filed for by but a single candidate. The following are the men running for county jobs:

State's Attorney, Eugene M. Runyard, William A. Deane, James G. Welch, Herman Litchfield, Ashbel V. Smith, Harold J. Hansen; county surveyor, Charles E. Russell, Benjamin Thacker, James Anderson; county coroner, Dr. John L. Taylor, Dr. James L. Miller; clerk of circuit court, L. J. Wilmet; county recorder, Lewis O. Brockway; senatorial committeeman, Harry J. Wheelock.

W. J. DARBY RETIRES FROM LUMBER BUSINESS

A change in the ownership of the H. R. Adams Lumber & Co. took place this week when Horace Adams and Miss Ethel Adams bought out the greater part of their uncle's Mr. W. J. Darby, interest. Nason Sibley and Joe Horton also acquired part of Mr. Darby's interest. Mr. Adams will retain active management of the company.

LITTLE PEN-O-GRAMS

Bred Sow Sale at Chesney Farms On March 12

There will be a bred sow and gilt sale at the Chesney Farms in Lake Villa on Wednesday, March 12. This sale is being held for the farmers and breeders in this county especially and it will afford the local breeders the very best of pure-bred stock at "auction prices."

Illinois farmers raised 85 ton litters in the state last year. Chesney Farms will duplicate all prize moneys offered by the Lake County Fair for pigs shown from litters of these sows, and also ten dollars for every ton litter produced from these sows.

The sale will be held in the heated sale pavilion on Chesney Farms and forty head of sows and gilts will be offered to the public. Col. Walter Chinn will be the auctioneer, and selling will start at 1 o'clock. Luncheon will be served at noon.

COMMITTEES ARE APPOINTED FOR LAKE CO. FAIR

The meeting for the selection of the committees which will work out the Lake County Fair's destinies for next year was held at the Lake County Farm Bureau office at Libertyville recently.

President W. I. Woodin and Secretary John Wirtz of the association will act with the various committees in getting things ready for what is believed to be a banner year in the fair history.

The committees and their members follow:

Finance, T. J. Stahl, J. W. Cooper, A. J. Stahl; concessions, Fred Grabbe, J. H. Rouse, E. B. Corlett; handbook, George Balrtow, L. A. Huebsh, Bert Turner, W. J. Schreck, E. H. Kane; Livestock, A. Efinger, A. J. Stahl, Ed. Conrad, L. F. Clow, D. V. Wait; agricultural, W. E. Miller, H. Flood, D. H. Minto, A. O. Rockenbach, George Koppenhoefer; club work, E. A. Wilton, E. B. Jordan, H. C. Ames, J. J. Doerschuk, Mrs. T. J. Stahl, Miss Hanter; gatemen, E. Harris, E. A. Wilton, A. O. Rockenbach; manufactures and displays, H. B. Eger, Frank Burke, O. W. Marley; county board, H. B. Eger, Fred Kirschner, Ray Paddock; horse show, T. J. Stahl, Fred Grabbe, Ed. Conrad.

Fords are being used to come to school in once more.

We play Libertyville at the Highland Park tournament Friday.

You should see the hammered copper work being done by the art metal class.

The Ag. boys are studying potatoes by means of slides used in the new projector machine this week.

We had chicken and biscuits and gravy at cafeteria Tuesday.

The vaudeville people are hard at work.

Ada Chinn has been on the sick list for several days.

Report cards go out Friday.

Have you been down to see the Indian relics presented by Mr. Blunt? They are worth the trip.

Murry Horton is still unable to officiate at the furnace. Earl is taking his place.

Some of the freshmen attended an algebra party after school Monday.

Several of the teachers and students are recipients of some fine Florida fruit sent by Martha Hillebrand.

The Lincoln Essay contest in which all the students competed has recently closed. A medal presented by the Illinois Watch Co., and engraved by Wm. Keulman was presented to the winner, Bernadine Walsh of the Sophomore class. Katherine Minto was second and Marie Rothers was third. These three essays were read before the student body.

Have you seen the "Spotlight?" It will be turned on this week.

The hot bed is being prepared by the Ag. boys.

The bus is running on schedule once more, since the melting of the snow.

Fire extinguishers were made in chemistry Tuesday. Ask Bill Kufalk.

Mr. Watson and eight of the boys will go to Highland Park Friday to play in the tournament.

You should have seen the line of students waiting to get to the 15 cent plate of chicken, biscuits, mashed potatoes and gravy. About seventy people were served.

County Officials Move into New Offices

County Treasurer Ira Pearsall and his force moved to the new treasurer's offices in the new addition to the county building Saturday afternoon. The treasurer's office is completed and ready for occupancy and while the workmen are laying the new floor in the old hallway, the entrance to the offices will be from the south side of the new addition.

County Clerk Lew A. Hende moved his effects and opened business in the new offices Monday morning. Workmen are moving the big records of county work from many years back and the files of probate and county work have been in the process of moving for several days.

The treasurer's office in the new addition is located on the first floor on the south side of the hall midway down the new addition from the old part. The county clerk's office is located directly across the hall. The offices of both departments are much larger than the old and they are given more vault space while the section for those calling to do business is separated from the work rooms.

GIVES OUTDOOR CONCERTS FOR RADIO ENTHUSIASTS

Chas. Lux has installed a loud speaker on his radio and with the horn projecting through the window of his Electrical shop is giving the radio fans a daily concert. The speaker is very loud and from the number of listeners in it looks as if Charley will have to build a grandstand when the warmer months roll 'round.

Our Invitation

Present this clipping for admission at the Crystal Theater, on Wednesday evening, March 12.

The Antioch News invites as its guests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Palmer to witness next Wednesday's presentation of "A Man of Action," at the Crystal theater.

Each Wednesday evening The Antioch News will present tickets to the names announced in the above space. Watch for your name to appear, then clip out the notice and present it at the Crystal Theatre. It will be your admission ticket. Read the announcement next week, as you probably may be next.

Harmony Meet With Dealers Is a Success

Everything Points to Long Period Contract on April 1

A get-together meeting of the Milk Board of the Milk Producers association and representatives of the dealers of Chicago was held Friday at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago. There was a real spirit of harmony shown, and all present were highly elated over the outcome of the meeting.

Points of interest leading up to the price-setting meeting to be held Friday were discussed. The trend of the subject on length of time for the new contract seemed to point to a long period. A contract extending for the period of one year was mentioned, but there seemed to be a little balking on such a long period. Nevertheless, it showed that a fair period contract might be reached and optimism was raised to a point where it was thought that at least six months would be the terms written into the next contract, if not better.

The question of price, of course, was not discussed, but it is expected that the board will approach the buyers next Friday with a $2.75 proposition. If this can be put across, and any fair period time is obtained, this will enable the producers to work out their association plans for a strong organization.

There are already plans being discussed for the future policy of the association, and the subjects leading out from these discussions lead to some form of control over the farmers' output, or delivery.

Another question receiving considerable attention is the increasing of the demand for milk in Chicago. This will be brought about by advertising. There is no question that with the proper method and advertising that demand for milk can be brought up to the point where the old bugaboo of surplus milk can be any longer held over the farmers' head. It certainly will be the era of a new business for the farmers if the dealers and producers can get together on a consistent advertising program.

Results of advertising in New England showed in some cities per capita consumption of more than double the consumption in Chicago. The figures at that time showed Chicago as one of the poorest consumers of milk, and considering its food value, the poorest paid commodity.

The local plant expects to install a new separator this week and it is said that this will enable the plant to take care of every can of milk in this section, including the old Marketing Company members.

A well attended meeting of milk producers was held at the Star theatre at Grayslake Tuesday evening. The general tendency of the meeting was toward uniting the producers into one organization. The speakers of the evening were Frank Fowler, Judge Pedan, Charles Sibley and Labor Organizer Stanley of Waukegan. Senator Swift made a few remarks. The meeting did not break up until 12:30.

Richmond Plant to Close

The Milk Producers Marketing Co. plant in Richmond will be closed on Friday of this week and no more milk will be received at this station at least until another company takes over the place.

Francis Howden, who has attended to the shipping from the Richmond plant for the past several weeks, left Sunday for Chicago where he has accepted a position with the Bowman company. George Grant has had charge of the plant here this week.

OLD MARKETING COMPANY FORM UNDER NEW NAME

A new company, the Midwest Dairy-men's company, has been organized as a cooperative milk and dairy products selling company, under the Illinois laws, the new company taking the place of the Milk Producers' Marketing Company March 1. An election of the new contract signers will be held in June, but to get the new

Watch "His Smoke" This Season

"Hot stove league baseball prophets predict great things for this young pitching star this season. He is Wayland Dean, a 21-year-old right-hand flinger whom the New York Giants recently purchased for a price reported at 50,000 or its equivalent in players and money. The youngster is at present preparing for his southern training trip with McGraw's outfit.

Dean has had a meteoric rise in the baseball world. Just two years ago he came into the limelight and last season was the second most effective hurler in the American Association, winning twenty-eight games and losing eight as a member of the Louisville club.

"Just watch his smoke this season on the big time"—say the prophets.

SCHOOL NOTES

Primary Room

The following had 100% spelling records for the past week. Third grade Vernon Runyard and Simon Schaefer. Fourth grade Caroline Larwin and Wilson Runyard.

We are ordering our garden seeds from the penny packet seed company.

The third grade made a geography poster entitled "how other people work and live."

The fourth grade have completed five health posters which we have on exhibit for our health lessons during opening exercises.

Mae Polze and Pauline Schaefer are assisting Miss Ender with the hot lunches this week.

Mrs. Lubeno donated a roaster of scalloped potatoes for the hot lunch which were enjoyed by all.

We have school on Saturday, Mar. 8, in order to make up the day we lost before New Years.

Simon Schaefer wrote to the Wisconsin antituberculosis association to thank them for the book on health which we received. The following is their reply.

Master Simon Schaefer
Trevor, Wisconsin.

My Dear Simon:

We are very happy to know, from your letter of February eighth, that the book about health which you received for selling Christmas seals this year has proven so interesting to you. Your way of having a contest to sell the seals certainly worked out fine and shows that Miss Ender knows how to get you children interested in helping a good work.

Thank you for writing us and with best wishes to Miss Ender and all the boys and girls in your school.

Very truly yours,
S. W. ROE.

A. V. SMITH

Candidate for State's Attorney
Primaries April 8, 1924

Asks for Re-election on His Record

State's Attorney Smith's Record

Col. A. V. Smith is accredited by close observers, not alone in Lake County but throughout Illinois, with having conscientiously and efficiently administered the office of State's Attorney. He is considered the best State Attorney in Illinois and one of the best in the country. His law enforcement activities have not a parallel in this state. He has kept his pledge made at time of his election, to do everything in his power to enforce the law.

Col. Smith's tenure must strongly appeal to Lake County taxpayers, viewed from the angle of economy. During the three years he has been in office he has paid his own salary, the salary of his assistants, stenographer's salary, detective hire, special officers' hire and expenses, in fact, every expense that could by any possibility be charged against his office, leaving a balance of approximately $20,000 to be turned into the school fund in July, 1924.

Of course the law violators whom he has fought will do everything in their power to distort and conceal the facts and to defeat Col. Smith, but the NEWS is convinced that the law abiding people of this county in their cool, sober judgment will properly and judicially weigh the exemplary record of achievements listed below, and that their verdict on April 8 will assure a continued policy of law enforcement at the hands of State's Attorney Smith.

We cite a few of the outstanding accomplishments of his office during Col. Smith's regime:

The conviction of three murderers:

a. George Niggermeyer for the murder of John L. Johnson. Sentenced—25 years in the penitentiary.

b. Ignatz Potz for the murder of motorcycle policeman William Peterson. Sentenced—hanging. Commuted to life imprisonment by the Governor.

c. William Lee for the murder of Hallie Lee. Sentence—life imprisonment.

The conviction of Scott Garner and James Montgomery for assault and rape. Sentence—life imprisonment in each instance. Four convictions and penitentiary sentences for the statutory crime of rape on young girls.

Two convictions for crime of arson (One of the most difficult crimes to prove).

Trial of Antioch bank robbers.

The breaking up of the repeated box car burglaries at Roundout and Blodgett.

The jailing of Mike Boyle and Ben Newmark for contempt of court; later pardoned by the Governor.

The trial and conviction of Wilbur Glenn Voliva for criminal libel.

The destruction of 87 slot machines. There is not a slot machine in Lake County at the present time.

The conviction and sentencing to the county jail of 118 violators of the prohibition, gambling and vice laws.

The breaking up of all open gambling houses in Lake County.

The collection of $130,000 in fines and fees.

It has always been customary to give a second term to an official whose record has been satisfactory. It surely must be your conviction the above record entitles State's Attorney Smith to that consideration—Editorial in the Waukegan Daily News, Feb. 20, 1924.

no attempt to open its section of highway 50.

Judging from the number of people who attended the annual membership meeting and the number of residents who have already paid in their dues, 1924 looks like a big year for the Fox River & Lakes Improvement association.

Wm. A. Oppenheimer of Green Bay, of the firm of Oppenheimer & Obie of that city, was in Burlington last week with the plans for the new High school building. At a meeting of the school board some slight changes were made in the same and Mr. Oppenheimer was instructed to mail the plans as soon as changes are made to various contractors who want to bid on them. The date for opening bids has been set for Wednesday, March 19. Whether the contract will be let at that time is uncertain. The sum of $200,000 has been voted for the building and if bids are not within the limit it may be necessary to advertise again for bids.

The will of Miss Florence J. Druce was filed last week, naming L. P. Hanna of Waukegan as executor. The legatees in the estate are Miss Olive Coleman, H. V. Cleveland, and Mrs. Johnson. Miss Coleman, came to Grayslake thirteen years ago from the east and taught school here for one or two years. She became acquainted with Miss Druce and the two since that time have been inseparable. She will receive the income from all the real estate during her life. At her death it is to go to the children of Miss Druce's half sister, Harold Cleveland, who is well known here gets the stocks in the Waukegan store. The half sister, Mrs. Johnson was bequeathed only a nominal sum. The estate was estimated at $55,000.

Kenosha and Kenosha county is very much interested in a movement which is on foot in Wisconsin counties to take steps to halt "child weddings" at Waukegan, this being the Gretna Green for all Wisconsin youthful elopers. The proposed action on the part of the Waukegan authorities in investigating what they believe to be the elopement of a number of high school students who are alleged to have been married is believed to be but the first step in a similar course that is planned in several Wisconsin cities.

A meeting of patrons and stockholders of the Badger Dairy company of Burlington and also dairymen in that vicinity was held last week at Weller's hall to consider the matter of operating the plant of the Badger Dairy Co. in that city after March 1, when the Co-operative Marketing Co., who have a ten year lease on the plant, go out of business.

Seeks $1 a Mile for Having Acted as "Walking Advertisement"

Residents of San Diego, Calif., are anxiously awaiting the outcome on the claims of Henry Stewart, an aged pedestrian, who asserts that that city owes him the magnificent sum of $100,000 for the hired use of "his puppies"—er, excuse us—feet. That's what he told the city attorney there—nearly causing that official's heart to stop.

According to Stewart, it all came about some years ago when some supposedly over-zealous mayor of San Diego is alleged to have promised him (Stewart) the modest sum of $1 a mile if he would walk around the world advertising the approaching San Diego exposition. Stewart claims he walked 100,000 miles from city to city, visiting many foreign lands.

When he put his bill up to the city attorney, it was the first that official had heard of the veteran hiker. And while taken by surprise, he declined to pass on it, without making an exhaustive investigation. After ascertaining who was mayor of the city when Stewart started on his long journey and getting other data relative to the promises made the aged hiker, he is hopeful of amicably reaching a financial settlement of the question in some form.

FATHERS AND SONS BANQUET

The boys of the Agricultural class of the local high school and their fathers are to have a banquet at the high school Friday, March 14th, at 6:30. For the first time in the history of the department this event is to take place. It is hoped that it will become an annual affair.

This year Carl Colvin, Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture of the state of Illinois is to be the principal speaker. He has an important message for every father and son. Many local men are on the program. Frank Kennedy has been chosen as toastmaster for the evening.

A Chain-O-Lakes special dinner is to be served by the Home Economics department of the school.

SEED CORN TESTING

IS VERY NECESSARY

Did you ever stop to think why you only had three-fourths of a stand of corn? It certainly does not pay to remove your field when it is much easier to plant the corn a little thicker or get good seed.

There may be several causes for poor stands but there is one that we can prevent. We can test our seed corn during the winter or early spring to see whether or not it will germinate. Don't take any chances this year with your corn seed unless you have tested it. On account of the frosts last fall, seed corn is not near what it should be. Tests at the Antioch Township High School and elsewhere reveal the fact that some seed corn will not germinate. Good seed corn is high priced, but if you will make an ear test of your own, you may be able to find good seed ears in sufficient quantities to plant your acreage.

The best way to test corn is to make a box three feet square and six inches deep and fill it with sawdust up to within an inch of the top. Mark a cloth with two inch squares and lay it over the sawdust. Each square should be numbered and six kernels from different parts of the ear (marked with the same number) are placed in each square. Soak the sawdust well with water and cover the seed with a wet cloth. Over all this place a two inch layer of sawdust. This can be made in the form of a sawdust blanket so it can be easily removed.

Keep the box in a warm place for a week.

You can tell whether the seed is dead, weak, or strong by the way it has sprouted. Save only the best ears for planting.

Shelled corn is hard to test unless one is positive that it has matured and is not frosted.

Lake Villa Holstein Makes Butter Record

An extraordinary record for the production of butter was made recently by a purebred Holstein cow in the herd of E. F. Clark at Lake Villa. According to the advanced registry department of the Holstein-Friesian association of America this cow, Pieterje Dulce Johanna 3d, a senior three year old, produced in seven days 480.9 pounds milk and 18,833 pounds butter-fat—equal to 23.54 pounds butter.

To prove the productive capacity of its cows, the dairy breed associations maintain advanced registry departments, which in conjunction with the state agricultural colleges carry on an organized system of officially testing the cows of the breed for milk and butterfat. These official tests are conducted by disinterested men appointed by the state agricultural colleges, are surrounded by every safeguard, and the results are universally accepted as reliable in all respects. This method for making tests originated with The Holstein-Friesian association of America, but has now been adopted in some of its forms by all of the associations of breeders of dairy cattle.

DRAWS UPON HER OWN LIFE

Kathleen Key, Irish and beautiful and who will be seen in an important role in Marshall Nellan's "The Rendezvous," the attraction at the Crystal theater, on Sunday, never has to decide what she will do under varying circumstances in her screen portrayals—she knows. From a very full and colorful life of twenty years already lived, the black-eyed Kathleen has a wealth of experience upon which she is able to draw for practically every emotion required. Tremendous, she can gain atmosphere by remembering how she felt when, while riding on her pet shetland pony a maddened bull dashed out of the willows and chased her. If asked to register awe and repulsion, she can remember her feelings when she came upon a dead man hanging in a tree on an isolated hill. If a regal role is allotted her, such as the Princess in Nellan's Russian drama, "The Rendezvous," Kathleen can harken back to her school days when she used to put on a "King and Queen" show, in which she was always the queen.

Buy Your Tires from a Firestone DEALER

At the Latest Prices—The Lowest in History

You will find the Firestone Dealer one of the stable business men of your community. He offers a clean, fresh stock, backed by a well organized service. He wants you as a permanent customer.

That is the reason he sells Firestone tires. He knows and has plenty of proof that they are the best tires on the market. He can give you the greatest value and thereby retain your trade for years.

Every day you find new proof of this unequalled value. On the 15th of this month, Firestone Tires set two new dirt track records at Syracuse when Tommy Milton slid around four turns at every mile and covered the 100 miles in 75 minutes, 33 hundredths seconds. He also established a new world's record for one mile by covering it in 42 and 28 hundredths seconds. The next four cars to finish were also equipped with Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords. Each one of them went the entire race without a stop. This and every other important race this year was won on Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords and Steam-Welded Tubes. Such performance gives you conclusive proof of their strength and durability.

Not only do race drivers use Firestone Tires as protection to their lives and the surest way to victory, but the largest tire buyers in the world insist on and buy Firestone Tires for economy and service. These buyers include the leading car manufacturers, the biggest commercial car operators and the taxicab and motorbus operators. 57,639,714 tire miles were sold to taxicab and motorbus operators in the month of August.

Think this over. You cannot afford to accept anything less than Firestone service and economy. You can buy this service and economy from any of the dealers.

New Economic War Forecasted

Instead of a battle and war of arms, the future will see a battle of economics, in which international cooperative organizations will combat international monopoly, Huston Thompson, chairman of the Federal Trade commission, Washington, told more than 600 farmers gathered here during Farmers' Week at Madison, Wisconsin, recently. Chairman Thompson spoke on "Cooperation as I saw it in Europe," outlining the progress made in recent years by cooperative organizations in European nations.

Cooperation in Europe has made greater advances than in America, he said, primarily because of the tendency to hurry on the part of Americans in cooperative movements. He stated that one of the basic problems which must be considered in cooperative endeavors is that of financing the movement.

"Bib business the world over has been internationalized," Mr. Thompson declared. "The nations of one country are entering into contracts with those of another or are spreading their distributing organizations over other lands. Some have gone so far as to divide up the world's territory. Gradually over Europe, the consumers' cooperative organizations of the cities, and the one hand, and the farmers' purchasing organizations, on the other, are forming international buying organizations to combat monopolies.

"Every year at their international meetings, the question of international buying of raw materials is uppermost. These discussions are expanding into action. As soon as the monetary situation among the nations is stabilized, international purchasing by these associations will be tremendously accelerated.

"To one observing this great economic movement in the world's history, a battle of arms will be very difficult to bring about if a stabilized peace can be maintained for a few years. Instead of battle of arms, the future will see a battle of economics, in which the international cooperative organizations will combat the international monopolies.

"The cooperative city consumer, as well as farmer groups, are providing the greatest lesson in economy that the world has ever seen. Through their agencies over 125 million people of Europe are purchasing the necessities of human life or the materials required for producing farm crops. They are doing this upon a cash basis, paying as they go.

"In this respect they are probably the greatest single force for reconstruction in Europe. In America we are paralleling the economic situation in Europe, but we are about two years behind. The reaction from the insistent price-fixing and monopoly that is going on in this country is driving the ultimate consumer of the city and the farmers into their respective cooperative organizations as in Europe. Instead of going on a buyers' strike as the housewives of America did in 1919 and 1920, the consumers of Europe flocked to the cooperative organizations.

"Abroad the farmers finance themselves through their own credit organizations. Each member of an association assumes unlimited liability for the loans made by his society to his fellow farmers. This eliminates the great land owner from the association, and makes for small compact groups who act with extreme care.

"When these small groups have pooled their resources into one great central organization that draws its funds from them, the farmer has become practically independent in his banking operations.

He is able to resist the fluctuations of the speculative financial markets of the cities, even though he may be indirectly injured by their actions, as is the situation in Denmark today."

A man who had dealt for some years with the same grocer found the latter out in some shady practices. Going to his shop he gave the delinquent a piece of his mind. "You're a swindler, and I'll never enter your shop again," he said.

Next day, however, he came back and bought five pounds of sugar. "I thought you were never going to enter my shop again," taunted the grocer.

"Well, I didn't mean to," said the customer, coldly, "but you are the only shop in the place where I can get what I want. You see, I am going to pot some plants, and I need sand."

Service of Worship 7:30 p.m.

Ladies Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Nason Sibley Thursday afternoon. The choir will rehearse at the church Friday at 7 p. m. We were glad to have an important Christian addition at the rehearsal last week. Are you in it?

The sermon subject next Sunday will be "The Church and Labor." A careful statement of the attitude of the protestant church toward labor will be made. We will welcome a "come-back" from any one on the subject.

The people of the church have shipped four large bags of old clothes to the Chicago Goodwill Industries, where they will furnish work to the poor in making them over, and then can be bought for almost nothing by the destitute. Empty bags are at the parsonage, in the church basement, and at the home of Mrs. John Darby. Will you help to fill them?

A large congregation enjoyed Dan Singh (not dancing) at the Methodist church Sunday. Although he was 14,000 miles away from home he did not seem home-sick. A disciple of Gandhi, he is preparing in this country for missionary in his own country, where the educated youth of India are trying to remake India on the principles of Jesus—of progress, the motive of which is love.

Mr. Singh told of trying to become a Christian when only a boy, of opposition of his parents, who were high caste Hindus, of how at the age of eighteen, he broke away from his family and took the fatal step which made him an outcast with his own family. Although he was later partly reconciled to his people, he was disinherited and thrown on his own resources. He is convinced that only the religion of Jesus can redeem India from its religious selfishness, from caste and from child marriage, and the low position of woman.

The motive of the Hindu is to court favor with God so as to get to heaven. He thinks little of his duty toward others. The caste raises artificial barriers which impede progress in science, politics or religion. The position of woman is low; she gains salvation only through her husband. If he goes to the wrong place, oh my! Singh was married at the age of thirteen to a girl of nine. Among the high caste people, though the children are mated so young, they do not go to live with each other until they are about twenty years old. When he became a Christian that broke the contract, unless she chose to accompany him and become a Christian too. She did not so choose, probably from pressure on the part of her family, so the alliance was dissolved, without his ever having seen the girl.

These and many other things of interest Mr. Singh told of that ancient land of wonders and contrasts, from millions of outcasts on the verge of starvation to the rug which cost $1,500,000 for the home of one of the Rajahs in Junjab. We were very sorry that he had to leave early to catch the night train south.

Many Employed at Ford Motor Company Plants

Employment in the Ford Motor Company organization is now at the highest point in the company's history and reflects in a general way the prosperous condition existing in the country as well as in the automobile industry.

There are approximately 157,000 workers employed in Ford industries in the United States, according to recent figures. Of these, more than 21,000 work in branch assembly plants.

The largest number employed in any single manufacturing unit, is, of course, at the Highland Park plant at Detroit, where 68,500 men are at work.

The biggest increase in the number employed at any one place during the last year was made at the River Rouge plant of the company. A year ago 28,000 men were employed there, while today there are nearly 42,000 workers on the payroll.

Other manufacturing units, including the Lincoln car plant at Detroit, and the plants at Kearny, N. J., Hamilton, Ohio, Green Island, N. Y., Glassmere, Pa., and Poughkeepsie, N. Y., employ close to 11,000 men.

There are in addition to all these some 700 employees in the Henry Ford hospital at Detroit, more than 700 in the Henry Ford Trade school at Highland Park, and there are more than 11,000 employees in the foreign branches of the company.

They Might Pad the Railing to Make This Dobbin More Comfortable

San Francisco has laid claim to many odd things in its scenery, but here's one of its sidelights that sure "takes the cake." Pictured above is the "laziest horse in the world," whose driver dares any other horse-flesh enthusiast in the universe to dispute the title.

"Lazy" hardly describes this "nag." In fact, if the ordinary "teamo" described him, we're afraid we couldn't put it into print. But he that as it may—wouldn't such a pose jar the refinement of any self-respecting member of the equine world? We'll say it would.

You see—this horse is one of a team of truck horses whose duty it is to pull a load down to a San Francisco wharf daily. It takes all day to shift the load so the horses have to wait. Immediately upon arriving at the dock each morning, this heavy fellow seats himself comfortably on the railing as the picture shows, and stays in that position all day—not even giving up his comfortable perch when they put the feed bag on him at noon.

"Lazy"—say, he is nothing but.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

PEOPLE ARE JUDGES OF NEW HATCHERY PLAN SAYS I. A. A. MAN

"The people are the judges of the accredited hatchery plan now under way in Illinois," declares J. D. Harper, in charge of Poultry and Egg Marketing for the Illinois Agricultural Association in a statement to the Lake County Farm Bureau, "and they are showing that they are highly in favor of it for the ten hatcheries now accredited report that there is a big demand for state guaranteed baby chicks. Most of these hatcheries have almost their entire season's output contracted for at this time."

The accredited hatchery plan was started last October by the Illinois Agricultural Association, the University of Illinois and the State department of agriculture. It provides that hatcheries which agree to sell only state-inspected farm flocks may sell their chicks under the brand "Illinois Standard Chicks."

The plan was inaugurated because unscrupulous hatcheries often misrepresented the chicks they sold, selling chicks that turned out to be culls, untrue to breed and otherwise not as represented. The International Baby Chick Association, composed of leading hatcheries throughout the world, has gone on record as unanimously favoring the accredited hatchery plan.

H. W. Day, supervising inspector of the Illinois department of agriculture, and in charge of the inspection work, says that the expense is not prohibitive as has been charged by some sources. He states, "A record of the cost of inspection on 31,439 birds owned by some of the hatcheries show that it cost an average of three and one-third cents per bird." He further says, "The accredited hatchery plan is taking the guess out of buying baby chicks. With a state guarantee the customer can depend that his checks are as represented."

"STAY ON THE FARM," ADVISES DEAN RUSSELL OF WISCONSIN

"At a time when agriculture as an industry is struggling to get back to normalcy, and many are claiming that farming is a losing game, it is refreshing and encouraging to read the words of Dean H. L. Russell of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, who counsels young men not to leave the farm for the city, and to prepare for farm management. He says:

"The shrewd young man in deciding what business or profession he wants to follow, will be wise not to go with the crowd. Competition is always the keenest and the possibility of oversupply the greatest when everybody wants to rush into the same line. Just now the recent unpopularity of farming makes this a more attractive field than normal. Especially so to the young man who trains himself to do better than the average."

"This is sound common sense. It carries weight coming from one of the leaders of agricultural thought. When Dean Russell speaks, those who know him sit up and listen. The same idea has been expressed by many others who read the future in the light of history. Races and nations come and go; civilizations and cities rise and fall; but always there are the people on the land engaged in the primitive occupation of tilling the soil.

"The farmer represents solidity and permanence. He has his ups and Steen of the M. E. church officiating. The bride and groom were accompanied by his sister, Miss Albertine Nelson, and Kenneth Weinke, a brother of the bride. The bride wore white satin and point lace, carrying a bouquet of roses and hyacinths and wearing a wreath of orange blossoms. The bridesmaid wore white voile over pink satin and carried sweet peas. The wedding march was played by Miss Bevear. A wedding dinner was served to about 80 of the relatives and friends of the bride and groom. Fifty of the young people remained for the evening, and the midnight luncheon. The bride, a young lady of 18, and the groom were both born and raised in this township. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson left on a short wedding trip and will be entertained among relatives of the groom in Chicago.

Co-op Markets Boom in Ohio

Cooperative marketing of farm products took longer strides last year in Ohio than ever before, it is declared in the annual report of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, now being mailed to farmers in every county of the state.

Producers of dairy products, live stock, wool, grain, fruit, vegetables, tobacco, poultry and eggs either have developed their selling organizations to a greater efficiency or have taken steps to start such marketing, according to the report.

The report shows that cooperative marketing of milk, using the pool plan, has been adopted by producers around five of the largest cities in Ohio and strengthened at several others. Cream producers around 73 Ohio shipping points are marketing through their own cooperative stations, a number of which established during 1923.

Farmers added cooperative live-stock commission firms at Pittsburgh and Cleveland markets, and a company to handle live-stock on order to packers and eastern killers during the year, says the report. The firm at Buffalo, established late in 1922, declared a $24,000 patronage refund. These terminal cooperatives are in addition to growth and strengthening of local cooperative live-stock marketing in nearly 70 Ohio counties.

Nearly 4,000,000 pounds of Ohio wool was marketed through cooperative channels during 1923, much of it going through the Columbus warehouse.

The development of a grain sales agency, through which nearly 100 cooperative elevators are selling grain, is the outstanding achievement in cooperation in that field listed for 1923 by the report. Grain has been moved through this agency directly to interior mills. Establishment of several cooperative elevators also is recorded.

More than three times the amount of fruit was packed, shipped and sold cooperatively under the "Buckeye" label than during any previous year, the federation reported.

What Do They Get?—Ask Milk Farmers

Farmers of Richmond section take issue with the Milk News regarding their article on "Paying the Farmer for Reacting Cows." The following is a reprint of recent article of the Richmond Gazette:

"How much do farmers receive for cattle which react to the tuberculin test applied under federal and state supervision?"

In the Milk News for January, 1924, Vol. 30, No. 1, the following article appears on page 6.

Paying the Farmer for Reacting Cows
"In asking a dairyman to sign on the dotted line an application to have

WHAT DO CLOTHES MEAN IN YOUR LIFE?

Clothes are likely to be just an incident with most men—but they ought to be a very important matter.

You'll agree to it too if you'll stop to think of the important things good clothes do for you.

Doesn't a man have to have confidence in himself to succeed? Good clothes help to create it.

Doesn't a man have to have the confidence of others to get very far in life? Good clothes get that for you.

Is it important to make good first impressions? Good clothes again.

Is it worth while to have pride in yourself and in your appearance? You can't have it without good clothes.

Good clothes influence your thoughts, your acts, your success.

Two top coat styles are shown above; both good ones. You'll see them on well dressed men for spring.

his cows tuberculin tested, he is usually told that he will be paid for all the reactors found. Take a pure bred cow for instance, the most that the state and federal government allow for such an animal is $50.00, while the limit on a common or grade cow is $25.00. If you are fortunate enough to get an appraisal of $75 on a registered animal, which is the highest allowed and she brings $15 in the yards, you are entitled to collect one-third of the balance, $20, from the state, one-third, i. e., $20 more from the federal government, which added to the $15 mentioned, makes a total of $55, all you receive to cover your loss. In other words, you are compelled to abide by the appraisal valuation in which you have no voice and then stand one-third of the computed loss."

Please note that the above mentioned article states that $75.00 is the highest appraisal allowed on a registered animal.

This statement is absolutely untrue as proven by the appraisements which have been made in McHenry county.

Purebred shorthorn cattle owned by a Coral township breeder were appraised at $100 to $200; pure bred Holstein cattle owned by breeders in Dorr, Nunda, Greenwood, McHenry, Hebron, Alde, Chemung, Dunham and Marengo townships were appraised as high as $225.

Pure bred Hereford cattle owned by Dorr and Hartland breeders have been appraised as high as $250. I have received $135 for indemnity and salvage for one pure bred animal.

The statement does not hold good even with grade cattle, for owners of grade cattle in various parts of McHenry county have reported appraisements of $75, $80 and over.

As a dairy farmer and as a member of the Milk Producers' association it appears self evident that we will accomplish much more if we will stick to facts and publish such facts. The time has arrived when dairy farmers as well as other farmers must tuberculin test their cattle if they wish to maintain a market for the dairy products and the livestock.

Fifty-six (56,000) thousand farmers in Illinois have had their herds tested for tuberculosis at this writing and new herds are being tested in Illinois at the rate of one hundred to one hundred and fifty per day.

The figures which have been given above regarding appraisements which disprove the statements in the article published in the Milk News may be verified by getting in touch with Dr. J. J. Lintner, in charge of tuberculosis eradication work, Chicago, or breeders who have had their herds tested and have had reactors, among whom are: H. D. Crumb, Harvard; Peter Feltes, Woodstock; C. W. Harrison & Son, Ringwood; John A. Miller, McHenry; W. H. Gardner, Solon Mills; C. C. Harrison, Ringwood; D. J. Olmstead, Woodstock; John C. Olbrich, Harvard; Leroy J. Nish, Crystal Lake; R. R. PROPOSAL TO MAKE MILK THE NATIONAL DRINK IS FAVORED

"Resolved that we, the agricultural representatives of the Commonwealth of the great state of Kansas, do favor and recommend the establishment of milk as a national drink."

This resolution was adopted at the Kansas Agricultural Convention held early in January at Topeka, Kansas. The convention included prominent

Who Owns This Company?

THE OWNERSHIP of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois is not vested in a few but is widely distributed among its more than 252,981 customers.

Investing in a Company rendering essential services to a community, opportunity is offered individuals with moderate surplus savings to participate in the growth and betterment of the place in which they live.

The revenues of this Company being derived from the sale of services to the public, which are necessities rather than luxuries, are stable and not subject to violent ups and downs.

This Company extended service to 32,821 new customers last year, the largest number of customers obtained in any one year in the Company's history.

agricultural organization and officials of the state.

The resolution was based on the preamble that "our boys and girls are the men and women of tomorrow, and healthy physique is conducive to good citizenry." Another basis for the resolution was recognition that the dairy cow is the foster mother and an important financial support of the Nation.

This resolution is believed, by dairy officials of the United States department of Agriculture to be the first of its kind on record. Dr. C. W. Larson, Chief of the Dairy Division of the department, expressed the opinion that the proposal to make milk a national drink is an appropriate recognition of "the drink of health," as it is sometimes called.

"Certainly," Dr. Larson remarked, "milk is worthy of the distinction as a national beverage. In addition to its high nutritive value and health-giving properties as a drink, it yields other valuable food products, including butter, cheese, ice cream, milk powder and condensed milk. Its by-products enter into the manufacture of almost countless products. The widespread distribution of dairying in every state and its growth in our island possessions also appear to warrant the selection of milk as a national drink."

STATE GUARD HERDS AGAINST TUBERCULOSIS

Connecticut livestock sanitary officials recently established a regulation requiring that herds of cattle under State or Federal supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis shall admit only cattle coming from herds under similar supervision.

Although the regulation may cause dealers inconvenience for a time, both State and Federal authorities agree that the ruling will benefit the herd owners and result in good for the already highstanding cattle industry of the State. It will also further the national movement for the eradication of tuberculosis.

In the opinion of veterans of the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, the supply of tuberculosis-free cattle is no longer an obstacle to such a policy of replacement as supervision has become so general. It now includes more than half a million herds, of which about 1,500 are in Connecticut and over 25,000 more are in other New England states.

WAKE UP FRESH AND VIGOROUS AFTER USING VEGETABLE SYRUP

Many people here are neither very well nor very sick, but never really feel their best at this time of the year—due to a sluggish liver.

If you often wake up dull and tired, if your tongue is coated; bad taste; complexion sallow; digestion poor—often constipated, nervous and upset. If you catch cold easily and your system is too run-down to throw off these ailments. You will feel badly until your liver has been properly cleansed and toned.

Get quick relief! Take just a spoonful of Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup after the next few meals. Notice the quick difference in the way you look, eat, sleep and feel. Contains ingredients known to Physicians for their corrective and health building properties. Pleasant to take, and you will be completely satisfied, otherwise Dr. Thacher's is sold and recommended by S. H. Reeves in Antioch and by leading druggists in every city and town.

The Custard Cup

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Living in a barn, converted into a dwelling, Mrs. Penfield is manager of an apartment building known as the "Custard Cup," originally "Cloister Court." Her income is derived from laundry work, her chief patron being a Mrs. Horatio Weatherstone, whom she has never seen. Living with her are "Crink" and "Thad," homeless small boys whom she has adopted. They call her "Penzie." Thad tells Penzie a strange man was inquiring for her under her maiden name.

CHAPTER II.—A tenant, Mrs. Gussie Bosley, induces Penzie to take charge of a package, which she does with some misgivings.

CHAPTER III.—Searching a refuse dump for things which might be of value, Crink, veteran at the game, encounters a small girl, Lettie, who proves a foeman worthy of his steel. He takes her to Penzie, and Lettie is adopted into the family.

CHAPTER IV.—The stranger proves to be Mrs. Penfield's uncle Jerry. He announces he is going to remain in the vicinity of the Custard Cup.

CHAPTER V.—Uncle Jerry arranges to occupy the loft above Mrs. Penfield's abode.

CHAPTER VI.—Uncle Jerry meets Prudence Hapgood, no longer young, but attractive, and the two appear to "hit it off." Well, Lorena Percy, young friend of Penzie's, tells her of her engagement to Dick Chase, also a mutual friend.

CHAPTER VII.—Friendship developing between Uncle Jerry and Frank Bosley, husband of Gussie, worries Penzie.

CHAPTER VIII.—Calming a tenant, Mrs. Sanders, on the verge of a nervous breakdown, Mrs. Penfield reveals the tragic story of her own life, the sudden loss of her three children in an epidemic and the subsequent death of her husband.

CHAPTER IX.—Lettie's pet aversion to the Custard Cup has long been a certain Mr. Josiah Wopple, and the animosity culminates in a physical encounter in which much water is spilled.

CHAPTER X.—Dick Chase confides to Mrs. Penfield that his fiancée's stepmother, Mrs. Percy, by pleading physical helplessness, is seeking to prevent their marriage. Penzie skillfully exposes Mrs. Percy's sham, and the latter is forced to withdraw her objections.

CHAPTER XI.—The domestic difficulties of the Bosleys become a matter of gossip among the other tenants of the Custard Cup.

CHAPTER XII.—Lettie, having subtly discovered her beloved Penzie's distrust of Frank Bosley as a companion of Uncle Jerry, denounces Bosley and appeals to Uncle Jerry to give up the acquaintance. They laugh at her.

CHAPTER XIII.—Endeavoring to prevent the marriage of Lorena and Dick Chase, Mrs. Percy succeeds in badly damaging Lorena's trousseau. Mrs. Penfield, by the hardest kind of work, repairs the damage, and the wedding takes place.

CHAPTER XIV.—Remarks let fall by Mrs. Bosley leave Penzie in utter bewilderment as to the relations between Uncle Jerry and the Bosleys. Uncle Jerry is evasive in his explanations.

CHAPTER XV.—In the absence of Penzie, Lettie "entertains" Prudence Hapgood and Uncle Jerry, with disastrous results.

CHAPTER XVI.—The small members of the Penfield household insist on a Christmas celebration. Lettie engaging to provide a whole dollar for the occasion. She has an inspiration, and evolves a "machine," which she submits to an advertising agency. The manager is not at first impressed, but finally sympathizes with the earnestness of the child and gives her a dollar for the invention.

CHAPTER XVII.—Mrs. Penfield and Lettie go shopping and with infinite craft the dollar is expended.

CHAPTER XVIII.—In her joy over the coming festivities, Lettie actually makes friends with her long-time enemy, Mr. Wopple, and Mrs. Penfield improves the occasion to impress a moral lesson on her small charges. The Christmas celebration is a huge success.

CHAPTER XIX

Twenty Minutes Late.

"My goodness, Uncle Jerry, you don't mean it!" Mrs. Penfield paused in her chopping of meat for the dressing.

"Yes, Carline, I came in to tell you. I'm awful sorry, but—"

"But Christmas day!" she interrupted, struggling between hurt and bewilderment. "Not to take dinner with your own folks!"

"I would if I could. Wouldn't nothing please me better. But I got to go out of town. It's a sudden call. Business I got to see to! I may not be back for several days. Don't expect me till I come. I've got to hurry for my train. Good-by. Merry Christmas!"

Gloomily Mrs. Penfield stared after him. She still had no idea what sort of business he was trying out, as he expressed it; certainly she could not understand why any business whatever should call him out of town on the chief holiday of the whole year.

The rest of the dinner was gone for her, but she exerted herself, that the children might not notice. And they did not. Never before had they had so wonderful a feast. They would live on the memory of it for many days—rather more literally than anyone supposed at the time, too. Roast ducks and potato, gravy, squash, rice pudding with raisins! And all the time the tree waited for them to come back, beckoning to them with its soft, tinsel-hung boughs and gay festoons of popcorn and shells.

Lettie, slightly numb from repletion, hunched down on her table-box and fixed her black eyes solemnly on Mrs. Penfield's face.

"What're you thinking of, dear? Aren't you full?"

"Full!" Lettie left it at that, with entire adequacy. "What I was thinking of was last year and the swell feed I got. I had some moldy bread and a piece of bologna that I fished out—"

"Oh, Lettie, Lettie!" broke in Mrs. Penfield compassionately. "I'll never be thankful enough that Crink found you."

"Neither'll I be, you bet your front doornut! Jiminy, it's great to live grand like this."

The next morning the sky was full of clouds. It was degrees colder, and the wind sent the ragged leaves of the pepper tree swirling around the driveway. Mrs. Penfield reflected that it was fortunate she had just laid in a supply of coal. Cornstalks and driftwood might serve as kindlings, but they made little impression on heating the house and that generous portion of out-of-doors which swept in through cracks and knot-holes.

It was a week of rain. Clothes could not be dried in the yard, so Crink carried them up to the loft as in the previous winter, except that the ascent was easier because of Uncle Jerry's stepladder. Certainly washings could not wait for fair weather, because immediate revenue was required. Crink had asked for a week's pay in advance, to finish the payment on the coal; therefore the family were dependent on the current income. Mrs. Penfield had never planned so closely before, but it had seemed safe.

The first time that Crink returned without the money for the laundry which he had just delivered, she was disappointed; the second time, she was alarmed. In each case the family had gone out of town to spend the holiday week; Crink had encountered a maid who informed him carelessly that he would get his pay the following week.

"Now, children, we just got to plan," said Mrs. Penfield, cheerfully. Consequently they planned. Mrs. Penfield took no further account of possible income during the week, and apportioned the supplies on hand to tide them through till the day after New Year's. She was reasonably sure that on that date she could depend upon a payment from Mrs. Weatherstone.

Mrs. Penfield was that commercial outcast, the cash customer, who receives only the most fleeting consideration from the storekeeper, whereas the customer who keeps him waiting for his money is the object of his earnest solicitude and accommodation. It seems that the less money one has, the more promptly one pays. It was probable that Mrs. Penfield might have opened an account at Mr. Drake's; but it was contrary to her prudent policy, and also distasteful to Crink's ideas of independence.

"Land, I'm glad I've read all them diet books," she said to herself. "I know now that if you go without food for a few days, you ain't starving—you're fasting. And it's terrible stylish, too. Besides, water is awful filling."

She drank two glasses before every meal. To her astonishment, she discovered that Lettie knew this trick as well as she did, having learned it by a far more harrowing means—not by reading, but by necessitous experience.

It looked as if she would be able to steer her household craft safely through the shallow waters, without appealing in any direction; but there was one thing which she had not counted on, and that was the cumulative power of hunger. Ravenous stomachs accept the limited ration for a time; then rise in gathered rebellion and demand their full meal, totally unlike their apathy under fasting.

It was not until New Year's day that this happened. Lunch consisted of a small allowance of cornbread.

"Can't I have some more, Penzie?" wheedled Thad.

Mrs. Penfield's eyes filled with the tears that had been close to the surface every time she had looked at her brave brood.

Lettie sprang to her feet. "You little dummy," she said affectionately, "t'ain't cornbread you want; it's water. I'll get you some."

She brought him another tumbler of water. He drank a few swallows obediently. He always did what Lettie told him to.

"Oh," he objected, making a wry face. "It's got some'n in it. Tastes like salty."

"You bet it's got some'n in it," rejoined Lettie. "It'll make you want some more water—and then some more. You're going to get full 'fore I'm through with you. And after you got a full feeling, you can't tell what gave it to you."

"Oh, children," began Mrs. Penfield, quickly, "tonight we'll have a grand—"

—Her voice broke. With a swift movement she got up from the table and went back to the stove, rattling the dampers vigorously.

Crink also rose. "I got something to see to," he explained hurriedly. With the air of starting on a distant errand, he went out through the big front door.

Instantly, as if she had been waiting for some such circumstance, Lettie dashed out at the back door. She ran to the coop in which Bonnie Geraldine clucked away the days, and crumbled a reasonable lunch of cornbread through the slats. Reaching in her pocket for more, she turned to feed Fil Caesar.

Crink was there before her, digging into his pockets and spreading cornbread for the hungry little dog.

"I thought mebbe—mebbe Fil'd like some," he said softly.

Lettie nodded. "We can't tell him—'bout drinking water," she whispered. Her lips were unsteady, but she broke the cornbread with resolute fingers till Filbuster had eaten every crumb.

The day dragged through—and the night. The next morning, as early as permissible, Crink set out for relief, and brought back an enormous bundle from Mrs. Weatherstone's, as well as the pay for the two weeks. And the lunch that day far outdistanced the Christmas dinner in acceptability to all the little Penfields.

When Mrs. Penfield opened the bundle that Crink had brought, she was amazed to find that it did not contain white clothing as usual, but silks and embroideries, colored fabrics, a far more difficult washing. However, she undertook it the following morning, the more readily because it was cloudy, with a slight wind. The delicate articles could be hung in the yard and would dry quickly.

The rents must be collected, since all the tenants who had been away for the holidays were now home again. Mrs. Penfield flew from one thing to another—washing, collecting rent, watching the silk curtains and embroideries on the line, changing them about that they might dry as quickly and evenly as possible. She must get to the bank before closing time.

In the midst of all this bustle, Gussie Bosley came in, bringing a small square package.

"Don't say you won't take it," she forestalled Mrs. Penfield's objection. "I've just got to leave it with you."

"I can't take it," said Mrs. Penfield firmly. "It makes me uneasy. You'd better rent a safety box. Ain't anything safe here if a burglar should take a notion to come. I'm sorry, but I don't feel like taking it."

"You needn't take it," interrupted Gussie Bosley. With a lightning movement, she reached through the open bedroom door and placed the package on the apple-box cupboard. "The responsibility's on my head. Thank you."

She ran out of the house, well ahead of Mrs. Penfield, who followed, protesting, as soon as she had snatched up the package.

Displeased but conquered, she took the package back and dropped it in her old suitcase. She was in far too great a hurry to do anything else at the moment. It crossed her mind that Mrs. Bosley's nerves must be going back on her; but in that case, the safety box was the logical solution.

She hurried to the yard and quickly gathered the silken articles from the lines. She could not go downtown and leave them outside, even with the children watching them. As she came back, she glanced to see what time it was—caught her breath in dismay. The bank was closed!

Against, she stared blankly at the old alarm clock. It was never simple to read the discolored dial under the cracked glass, particularly because a leg was gone, and one had to turn one's head, mentally or actually, to compensate for the tilting. Otherwise, one might fall into error from long habit with normal clocks.

"How did I ever make such a blunder?" she gasped. "I'm twenty minutes behind, and I didn't know it. I must have read wrong when I looked last time. My goodness land, now I've got all that money in the house. Likely a few Bosley valuables more or less don't make so much difference as I thought."

A little later that same afternoon Bonnie Geraldine was secured by a shop-twine leash fastened around one leg and given an airing in the driveway. If Fil Caesar needed exercise, why not Bonnie Geraldine? So Lettie reasoned. She was therefore in the habit of giving Miss Bonnie frequent promenades around the driveway, which not only afforded healthful exercise but also exhibited the young Plymouth Rock to any admiration that might stray through the windows of The Custard Cup.

She was startled by the sound of a motor, rapidly approaching. Glancing up, she saw a beautiful limousine chugging into The Custard Cup, a circumstance which had probably not happened before since the earliest tenant had taken possession. Lettie was so surprised that she forgot everything else, staring, open-mouthed, till the limousine stopped beside her.

The big car contained only one person, a lady in a dark-blue suit and a small hat cunningly formed of dark-blue wings. She was tall and slender, with delicate features and creamy skin. She wore a sable scarf; she carried a sable muff. Most evidently she was in a hurry. Before the chauffeur could spring from his seat, she had opened the door of the car and started to descend.

Lettie roused. "Hold on!" she cried in alarm. "Wait till I get Bonnie Geraldine out of the way."

With one daintily shod foot on the running board, the lady paused. She swayed slightly. Her hurry seemed to desert her.

"What?" she gasped. "What—"

"Bonnie Geraldine," repeated Lettie. "Wait till I wind up her rope and kind o' pull her in. If you was to trip in it, you might throw her."

The lady's beautiful dark eyes followed the length of shop-twine to the bunch of speckled feathers, now considerably agitated by the general commotion and also by Lettie's zealous reeling in.

"Do you call that—that hen—Bonnie Geraldine?"

"Uh-huh," beamed Lettie, flattered by this attention to her pet. "Ain't it a grand name? I took it from two swell girls. She's going to be a society hen when she grows up."

The lady appeared to be having trouble about breathing. Her gloved hand fluttered at her throat, loosed the sable scarf. She stepped to the ground.

"Don't you think you might call your hen something more—more appropriate?" she inquired, with greater composure.

Lettie shook her head violently. "Suits me. They're the swellest folks I know, and—"

"Oh, then you know these people?"

Lettie tossed her head in disdain at this literalness. "I ain't seen 'em, if that's what you mean; but golly, I've seen their clothes. Swellest clothes you ever saw. I have to hang 'round the yard and watch 'em when they're drying, 'cause somebody might snitch 'em; and if they should—Landy great Goshens, it'd bust The Custard Cup to pay for 'em."

The lady's interest had waned. She was looking fixedly at the child's ragged blue chamber. Lettie, with lightning reaction, resented the scrutiny.

"What's the matter with this here rig?" she asked feelingly.

"Its familiarity," murmured the lady. "The same and yet not the same! Will you tell me where Mrs. Penfield lives?"

Lettie, now cuddling the caw-caw-ling Bonnie Geraldine in her thin arms, sprang forward, her great black eyes shining with excitement.

"Jiminy, do you mean it? Are you really coming to see us? Great guns, ain't that the darndest good luck!

By'rbybody 'round'll be jealous when they see what a caller we roped in. Follow me!"

With an air of importance as expansive as a drum major's, Lettie darted in front of the limousine lady and led the way toward Number 47. But at the entrance to the alley they ran into a youngster with auburn hair and big blue eyes that opened wide and wider in delighted amazement. He was wearing the pink plaid which had been made down from a garment once worn by Miss Bonnie Weatherstone.

The lady stopped short. "Who—who is this?"

"It's Thad," elucidated Lettie, somewhat impatient over this superfluous detail. "He's my little brother—or he would be if he was any related at all. Here, Thad, take Bonnie Geraldine 'round to her coop and be sure and fasten the slats. She's a precious hen, so you look lively or you'll have me to reckon with. Now—" As she slid the big door on its creaking wheels, she turned her attention again to the caller—"you hain't told me who you are. I gotta tell Penzie."

"Oh, yes. Tell her, Mrs. Weatherstone."

Lettie paused with the door half open. "Holy smoke!" she gasped. "You don't mean it! Land, I'm glad to see you at last. Come right along in, and set anywhere you like. That there chair's the best one, though, if you ask me. I'll speak to Penzie."

She darted into the kitchen, closing the door behind her with great forethought. She returned immediately.

"Penzie'll be in right away," she reported. "She's ironing some'n and can't stop in the middle. Just make yourself to home."

This Man Wouldn't Stay Down

HE was putting in long hours at monotonous unskilled work. His small pay scarcely lasted from one week to the next. Pleasures were few and far between and he couldn't save a cent.

He was down—but he wouldn't stay down! He saw other men promoted, and he made up his mind that what they could do he could do. Then he found the reason they were promoted was because they had special training—an expert knowledge of some one line. So he made up his mind that he would get that kind of training.

He marked and mailed to Scranton a coupon like the one on the right. That was his first step upward. It brought him just the information he was looking for. He found he could get the training he needed right at home in the hours after supper. From that time on he spent part of his spare time studying.

The first reward was not long in coming—an increase in salary. Then came another. Then he was made Assistant Manager. Now he is Manager with an income that means independence and all the comforts and pleasures that make life worth living.

It just shows what a man with ambition can do. And this man is only one out of hundreds of thousands who have climbed the same steps to success with the help of the International Correspondence Schools.

What about you? Are you satisfied merely to hang on where you are or would you, too, like to have a real job and real money? It's entirely up to you. You don't have to stay down. You can climb to the position you want in the work you like best. Yes, you can! The I. C. S. is ready and anxious to come to you, wherever you are, with the very help you need.

Surely when you have an opportunity that means so much, you can't afford to let another priceless hour pass without at least finding out about it. And the way to do that is easy—without cost, without obligating yourself in any way, mark and mail this coupon.
